

Southern California Society for Microscopy & Microanalysis

Membership Application 2019 - 2020

The Southern California Society for Microscopy and Microanalysis (SCSMM) is a non-profit organization dedicated to advancing the knowledge in all areas of microscopy and microanalysis, including, but not limited to: transmission electron microscopy, scanning electron microscopy, electron microprobe, ion probe, microbeam analysis, optical and confocal microscopy, and microspectroscopy. You are invited to join and renew your membership.

The Society is one of the local affiliated societies to Microscopy Society of America (MSA, <https://www.microscopy.org>). We meet twice a year at locations in the greater Los Angeles area. In the fall is an evening dinner followed by one or two speakers. In the spring is a full-day symposium featuring scientific talks from biological, medical and physical sciences, vendor talks and exhibitions, and student presentations.

SCSMM Regular and Student memberships are offered to individuals and are renewed every academic year. Corporate membership is offered to organizations, which entitles two individuals to attend SCSMM meetings. Corporate membership is acknowledged in SCSMM meeting announcements and newsletters that are sent to SCSMM members. Corporate members are invited to sponsor SCSMM meetings at Gold, Silver, or Bronze levels. Please see Vendor Sponsorships for details. For more information on corporate membership, please contact Brian Miller (503-984-0191, Brian.Miller@bruker.com).

To join SCSMM online and attend SCSMM meetings, please register online (<https://imri.uci.edu/content/2019-fall-meeting-registration>). Alternatively, you may fill the Membership Application Form and bring it to SCSMM meetings.
